SP 2.11. In the case of a professionally oriented bachelor's degree programme, their content includes the compulsory professional practice of students in a contracted organization for a total of at least one semester. The practice is designed to develop practical professional skills. It enables students to undertake activities through which they acquire the work procedures typical for the relevant level of qualification and the relevant field of study. It allows students to participate in professional processes, projects and through specific tasks acquire, knowledge, skills, and competencies relevant for the respective professions. The professional practice may be carried out as continuous or divided into several shorter periods, depending on the needs of the relevant study programme and the conditions of the cooperating organization in which the professional practice takes place.

The final thesis should demonstrate the student's ability to work creatively in the field of study in which he completed the study program. The topic of the final thesis is chosen by the student in agreement with the head of the final thesis, who creates a final thesis assignment in the academic information system, thereby determining the study obligations of the author of the thesis (student) in connection with the preparation of the final thesis. In order to ensure optimal conditions in the preparation of the final thesis, the head of the final thesis will prepare a schedule for solving the final thesis, design of appropriate literature, consultations in solving questions of methodological nature and in processing the obtained results, ensuring access to laboratories and to the necessary material equipment, training on the use of devices necessary for solving the topic of work, etc. The supervisor of the final thesis acquaints the student with the rules related to the writing of the final thesis and the ethics of citation according to valid regulations. In each semester of study, the study programme has defined compulsory and compulsory optional subjects with an appropriate hourly subsidy and the number of credits related to the preparation of the final thesis. The number of hours and credits takes into account the student's workload in conducting experiments and observations, and the time required to process data and write a thesis. The student may defend the final thesis if he fulfills the conditions set by the study rules of the faculty. The head of the final thesis and the opponents designated by the Trade Union Committee will prepare written opinions for the final thesis. When defending the final thesis, the student presents the results of his/her final thesis to the examining committee and to those present in the form of a lecture. As part of the defense, the examining committee evaluates the content and formal level of the student's final thesis, as well as its originality, at the same time evaluates the level of his presentation, ability to respond to comments and questions that are directly related to his final thesis	Study Regulations of Comenius University in Bratislava, Faculty of Medicine

SP 4.2. There is a flexibility in learning paths and in the achievement of learning outcomes. The study programme allows adequate education outside the university in domestic and foreign institutions, particularly through a mobility support. The results of this education are recognized by the institution.

Self-assessment of compliance The study programmes are designed in accordance with ECTS transfers and credit recognition, while it is a priority for SP graduates to acquire knowledge and new skills also through mobility at domestic and foreign educational institutions. The specific requirements for completing mobilities are regulated by the study plan. Mobilities are carried out within a wide range of publicly available schemes offered (ERASMUS+, SAIA). From its beginnings, medical education has been inextricably linked to science and research. The Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University in Bratislava, as the oldest and largest medical faculty of the Slovak Republic, is well aware of the direct connection between science and education. That is why scientific research is one of its core activities. We are of the opinion that pedagogical activity and science are inseparable at research-oriented medical schools. Inseparable because there is positive feedback between science and learning, which means that students must be passed on the latest research results to which their teachers contribute. Therefore, even teaching at the Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University in Bratislava cannot exist without incorporating the latest knowledge and without the own results of scientific research. The management of the Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University in Bratislava, both in the past, in the present and we believe that in the future they supported and will continue to support all forms of research at the faculty, both basic, applied and clinical research. The current times, when the whole world is in crisis caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, only confirms the irreplaceable role of scientific research activity and mental creativity. Comparison of Scientometric data of individual institutions, which is also one of the criteria for evaluating the quality of universities or faculties. Creative employees and PhD students of the Faculty of Medicine CU annually publish 350 to 400 publications indexed in the SCOPUS or Web of Science databases (years 2017 – 2020), which represents more than 50 indexed publications per 100 physical creative workers. VII. Self-assessment of Standard 8 – Learning resources and student support

SP 8.1. The institution has sufficient spatial, material, technical, and information resources for the study programme which ensure the achievement of learning objectives and learning outcomes. These include: lecture halls, classrooms, study rooms, laboratories, and laboratory equipment and other necessary equipment, technical facilities and equipment, studios, workshops, design and art studios, interpreting booths, clinics, priests’ seminars, science and technology parks, technology incubators, school enterprises, practice centres, training schools, training classrooms, sports halls, swimming pools, sports grounds, libraries, access to study literature, information databases and other information sources, information technology, external services, and their corresponding funding.

The equipment of the faculty is sufficient for quality teaching of subjects of the study program. Due to the current number of students, the faculty has a sufficient number of reconstructed classrooms with high-quality technical infrastructure, including classrooms for interactive teaching. The study programme is provided either at theoretical institutes of the Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University in Bratislava or at clinical workplaces of university hospitals with which the Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University has concluded a teaching contract. The place of teaching will depend on topic of the dissertation and the year of study in which the PhD student is. The teaching bases for theoretical teaching are represented by 18 theoretical institutes and 4 purpose-built facilities, which are located in the premises of the Faculty of Medicine of Comenius University in the buildings of "Old Theoretical Institutes" at Sasinkova Street No. 2 and "New Theoretical Institutes" at Sasinkova Street No. 4 and in the building at Moskovská Street 2, Bratislava. Theoretical institutes are equipped with specialized classrooms, seminar rooms, computer classrooms and autopsies with necessary audiovisual equipment and instrumentation for students, libraries with appropriate library collection for the needs of employees and students, laboratories with technical equipment for the needs of teaching and research activities. In addition to libraries and seminar rooms of individual institutes, the meeting room of the Scientific Council of the Faculty of Medicine, PhD students can also use common study areas and lecture rooms: Large auditorium with a capacity of more than 300 students with an area of 276.0 m2 with semicircular step seating, Small auditorium with a capacity of 144 students with an area of 108.0 m2 with direct step seating, Ladzianski auditorium with a capacity of 200 students with an area of 184.0 m2 with direct step seating. The teaching base for practical education is represented by 54 clinics - specialized teaching workplaces, which are located in 6 medical facilities in Bratislava (University Hospital Bratislava, National Institute of Children's Diseases, University Hospital of Merciful Brothers, St. Elizabeth Institute of Oncology, National Institute of Oncology, National Institute of Heart and Vascular Diseases), with which the faculty has concluded "Contracts on practical training". The use of computer simulators and interactive models is a worldwide trend in teaching medicine, including the third cycle, i.e. doctoral studies. The interactive procedure includes assessment, evaluation, formulation of decisions and correction of errors, which has the advantage over working with a real patient in that teaching is more effective. The newly established Institute of Medical Education and Simulations ensures the introduction of new methods of education into the curriculum of general medicine and education of teachers.	website University Hospital Bratislava National Institute of Children Diseases in Bratislava National Institute of Heart and Vascular Diseases in Bratislava National Cancer Institute St. Mark's Oncological Institute St. Elizabeth Church in Bratislava University Hospital of Merciful Brothers in Bratislava Institute of Medical Education, Faculty of Medicine CU

Self-assessment of compliance	References to evidence
A standard part of the teaching process is the provision of study materials to students. Several approaches are used for these purposes. Basic information about the content of the subject is published in the information sheet of the subject, where there is also a description of relevant sources of literature necessary for obtaining knowledge determined by the content of the subject. The faculty tries to provide the necessary study literature through the faculty central library. Another way is to publish presentations and other study materials on the faculty website for relevant subjects within individual institutes and clinics in accordance with the Copyright Act. A newer more sophisticated approach is the publication of study materials through the Moodle system and MS Teams, various e-learning tools that allow students based on university personnel approaches to use study material in the form of presentations, videos,	e-learning MEFANET Portal
